CARLTON-LE-MOORLANDS, a well-built village on one of the tributary streams of the Brant, 8 miles E.N.E. of Newark-upon-Trent, and 11 miles S.S.W. of Lincoln, has in its parish 409 souls, and 2600 acres of land, of which 2094 acres are rateable, and the rest roads, woods, and waste. It has generally a fertile hazle loam, and extends eastward to the Brant, and westward to Scotwater Bridge, on the Witham. Lord Middleton is lord of the manor, and owner of a great part of the soil, and the rest belongs to various freeholders and copyholders. Mr. Joseph and Mr. Wm. Brocklebank have estates and neat houses here. The copyholds are subject to small certain fines. Lord Middleton is also impropiator of the rectory, and patron of the vicarage, which is valued in K.B. at £7. 0s. 8d., and now at £90, in the incumbency of the Rev. P. G. Willoughby, B.A., who has 29A. 3R. 6P. of glebe, and a yearly rent charge of £36 in lieu of tithes. He has a good residence, and is also vicar of Stapleford, the two benefices being consolidated. The Church (St. Mary) was appropriated to Thornham Priory, and is a neat structure, with a fine tower and a good clock. It was repaired a few years ago, when the old school was added to it. The present school was built in 1854, by subscription. Here is a large Baptist Chapel, with a burial ground. The sum of £30, left for the school and the poor by John Jessop, in 1707, was laid out with £30, left for the poor by the Rev. — Smith and Wm. Eastland, in the purchase of 1A. 3R. 22P. of land, called East Meadow Close, and now let for upwards of £4 per annum. The poor parishioners have also 2A. 3R. 15P. allotted at the enclosure in 1701, and now let for £5. 18s. per annum. Mrs. Brocklebank, in 1820, left the interest of £100 for the support of a Sunday School. Mr. Joseph Brocklebank, in 1846, left the interest of £100 for the school and poor. The schoolmaster has also a yearly gratuity of £10 from Lord Middleton, and the weekly pence paid by the scholars.
